SALE PREPARATION... Assisting Acting Manager N. A. Fasola in co-ordinating all plans for the gigantic "Sears Days" celebration opening today are Shirley Doldan of the Credit Sales Department and Betty Lou Edwards of the Merchandise Receiving Department. Sales will last until May 6.

Annual 'Sears Day' Celebration Opens at Inglewood Store Today

Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s biggest annual promotion, "Sears Days," will be staged by employees of the Inglewood store beginning today and running through May 6, it has been announced by N. E. Surbaugh, manager of Sears Inglewood.

And, in accordance with "Sears Days" tradition, the assistant store manager, N. A. Fasola, will be in full charge of the store during the event.

Hundreds of seasonal merchandise items—many specially purchased for this annual sale—will be featured during the "Sears Days." They will include items for the family and the home.

Orchids Monday
One of the highlights of the sale is the traditional Employee Dollar Day Monday, April 29. This part of the sale adds additional excitement to the "Sears Days" Sale with free orchids for the ladies in the evening.

A committee of veteran employees known as the "board of advisors" is directing the celebration. This committee represents a total of 88 years of experience with Sears.

Committee Named
Serving on this year's advisory board are Joseph Saccacca and Louis Olson, merchandise managers; Jan Turner, specialty sales manager; W. R. Wallner, Francis MacDonald, Don Segale, Frank Price and Harold Marshall, department managers; Dick Donovan, personnel assistant, and James Dawson, photo expert.

"This annual event is strictly an employee operation," Fasola said.

"Every employee of the Sears Inglewood Store plays a vital role in the planning and executing of the event. This year, we are looking forward to one of the best "Sears Days" celebrations in the history of our store."
